Women's Health and Wellness Day is a celebration of women's bodies and an opportunity for education and empowerment. The event will cover a wide range of wellness topics, including nutrition, meditation, yoga and pelvic health.

Now in its second year, the event stems from ITR Physical Therapy founder Jennifer Chu's passion to change our culture's conversation about how we as women feel about our bodies in general and, in particular, the center of our bodies: our pelvis.

The mission of WHWD, a project of ITR Physical Therapy, is to empower women through education. By the time we are in our 80s over 50% of women will have some sort of pelvic floor disorder. WHWD aims to reduce the isolation women feel and help us all claim our power, support each other, and honor our beautiful core.

The event will include presentation-style learning opportunities as well as experiential classes including yoga, meditation, and dance. In order to personalize your experience at WHWD, this year's event will include FREE 10-15 minute private discovery sessions with ITR Physical Therapy: mini consultations for physical therapy and for functional nutrition.

Your business can be part of this unique day as well. Exhibiting and Advertising gives you targeted exposure and an attentive audience
